A Word From The Publisher

The Word Shoot has come and gone. From what I hear participation was improved this year, in spite of the economic situation. The weather was good and there were some new winners in the shoot-offs. We want to extend congratulations to Dustin Taylor for his 28 gauge victory and to Billy Williams for his Champ of Champ title. We also congratulate Wayne Mays for the 12 gauge Championship, "L. P." Giambrone, III for taking the 20 gauge and .410 bore titles. Craig Parsons in the HAA and Doubles. Let's not leave out Mike Schmidt with a perfect 450/450 HOA Championship.

The season has ended and started again. The Texas Skeet Shooting Association has set their Skeet Schedule for the new year. You can view it on our website on the Flyers page. Other states organizations are still working on their schedules.

If you are involved in that process, please remember to share your schedules with us when they are done. We will put them on our website so that our readers can plan their personal shooting schedules.

"L.P." gives us some good advice in his article this month entitled Reflecting. A positive outlook on our achievements is always a good idea.

Remember to send us your shoot flyers. We post new flyers on our website frequently. Check the Flyers page at www.redchutegazette.com to find out what is happening. If your club is not taking advantage of the Red Chute Gazette deal (see last page of this issue for details) what are you waiting for? I know I say that every month but some folks still have not figured out what a good deal is.

As I mentioned last month, our Son Michael graduated from Marine Basic Training at Parris Island, South Carolina in October. Debbie and I and many of our family and friends (a dozen in all) went out for the ceremonies. It was an awesome sight. Those of you who have experienced it know what I mean. I was impressed by the response Michael got from total strangers who met him on the trip back and while he was home briefly. So many thanked him for his service to our country. His response was a humble "It's my honor". Don't forget to pray for our Soldiers, Sailors, Marines and Airmen. They are fighting a war for you. While you are at it, say a prayer for their families back home. They need support too.

Wishin' you 3 @ 8, I am

Most Sincerely,

Doug Frey

Reflecting

By: Paul “L.P.” Giambrone, III

Another season has come and gone for us as skeet shooters and the good ‘ole off-season is upon us. It seems that each year that passes it goes by faster and faster. This year was an extremely busy and productive year for me and I hope that it was for you as well. We have had some ups and downs over the last couple of years in skeet shooting with the economy being one of the main drivers. Not knowing what is going to happen may have prevented some shooters and friends from traveling to some tournaments or missing all of them. The big positive event for us to look at is the Mini and Main Worlds this year... The numbers were up!!!! The weather was absolutely perfect for the entire stretch of the Mini and Main and there were a number of great shooters who participated.

Speaking of the World, congratulations to all of the World Champions including Dustin Taylor (28 gauge) and Billy Williams (Champ of Champs) for winning their first World Title. Wayne Mayes won the 12 gauge Title, Craig Parsons took the HAA and the Doubles, Mike Schmidt HOA (perfect 450X450), and Paul Giambrone, III with the 20 gauge and 410 Titles.

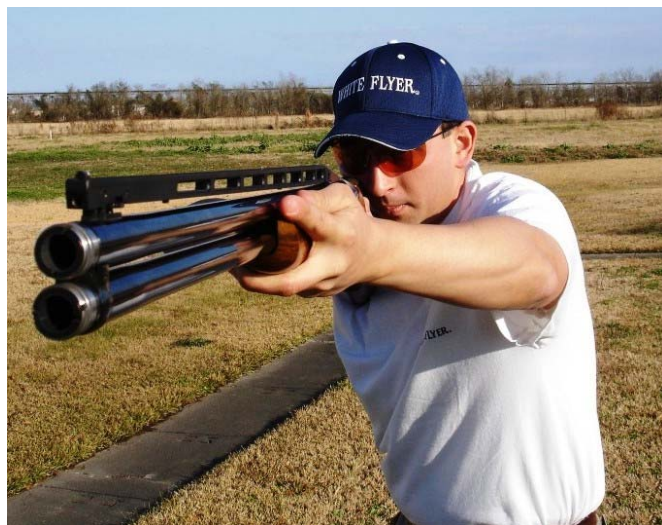

This is the time of the year where there will be a number of shooters analyzing their performances over the course of the year and spending some time reflecting on their year. One common mistake for shooters is that they tend to put too much emphasis on the average card. The average card is a good way of looking at your overall “average” in each gauge, but is not a true measure of the shooter you are. I know you are asking yourself how that is possible. I thought the average card was the most useful tool to define myself as a shooter... Not the case, actually quite far from the truth. Instead of looking at the averages for the year and picking out which shoots were great and which ones were not so great, ask yourself how well did you execute each shot for the year... What do I mean by that? It is simple. All you need to do is analyze the shots you made and see if you did what you wanted to do for that shot. A really good example is a golf shot.

We see the pros after they hit the middle of the green shaking their heads sometimes. Ever wonder why that is? From the outside, it looks like it was a great shot, but here is the bottom line. Most of the time, they made a bad swing or didn't do something right during their swing and they knew it instantly but got away with it. Now, they got away with a bad hit or you can call it a “good miss” but the execution of the shot was off. Meaning just because the end result was good, doesn't mean the shot was executed properly.

Same thing can be said about a good shot. They can set up for a putt, hit their line and get the speed they want, but still miss the putt. Those shots are executed perfectly, but the end result is not what they wanted... Now take that same concept and apply it to your skeet shots.

There are times where you make terrible moves or make a poor shot, but yet the target still breaks (these are the “good misses”). However, we tend to focus on the shots that were good shots and executed perfectly, but the target didn’t break. These are the shots that drive us crazy as shooters because we feel we did everything correctly, yet the target didn’t break.

When this happens to me, the way I handle the situation is very simple. If I executed the shot the way I wanted to and it didn’t break, I can’t blame the miss on anything. After all, we are all human! We are going to just miss every now and then for no apparent reason. The key to dealing with this type of miss is to stay focused on the positives and not get caught in the negatives. You must convince yourself that you executed everything perfectly and that it just wasn’t meant to be. Well, what about the other misses? When you make a bad move, it is important to realize that no one is perfect, yourself included! More importantly, do not focus on the negatives, but stay focused on the positives. Think about the great move you had to make on the diving Low 6, rather than the perfect Low 3 you missed.... Put the emphasis on the positives the execution on the shot rather than the average card.

What is the one common thing that every clubhouse has in common whether it is at a tournament, league night, or just an every day club? Every clubhouse has the same conversations amongst their shooters. I am not talking about the ones that are about the economy, politics, or the dirty jokes...I am talking about the negative talk that every clubhouse has. The negative talk I am referring to is the one where the shooters want to talk about all of the targets that they missed!!! Everyone wants to talk about why they missed that H2 in the last round or the 12 Low 5s they missed for the weekend! Why would we do that? Realize that it is important to understand why you missed, correct it, and then move on. However, this is rarely the case. Often times we are still talking about targets we missed hours, days and sometimes weeks later or even months later! Shooters do not realize what they are doing here at a sub-conscious level. By talking more and more about the misses, you are feeding your sub-conscious all of your bad moves and therefore that behavior is going to be expected! Instead, spend less time on the negatives things (the misses) and spend more time focusing on the positives (the ones you hit, good misses included). If you start focusing more on the positives, you will gain confidence because that is what you are feeding your conscious mind by talking about it as well as your sub-conscious mind. Overall, be more positive rather than negative!

As always, if you have any questions please feel free to email me at info@gsclinics.com or visit www.breakmoretargets.com for further information or past articles. Also, the website has information about upcoming events and clinic information. Check it out!

Tip of the month: I know that we are not going to be spending much time on the skeet field during the off-season, but give it a try over the next couple of times you go to practice. Once the practice is over, talk about all of the good shots you made and executed rather than spending hours of your time on the ones you missed. Watch how quickly your confidence is able to grow...

Dining on The Road

Beaufort, SC

In October 2011, Debbie and I and much of our family made a pilgrimage to beautiful and historic Beaufort, South Carolina. We made this trip to attend the graduation ceremonies for the Marine Corp. Basic Training on Parris Island. Our faithful readers know that our Son Michael had enlisted in the U. S. Marines and we were anxious to see him again after 3 months with no contact other than snail mail. Those of you who have sons and daughters who have blessed our country with their service in this manner or who have done so themselves know just what a big event this graduation ceremony is to family, friends and the recruits themselves. I want to thank our many skeet friends who have shared their experiences with us. The information you shared was very helpful to worried parents.

As visitors to the area, we had the opportunity to enjoy the sights and beauty of our surroundings, things the Marines recruits had no knowledge of since they had come onto the base in the dark of night and had no opportunity to see the outside world around the base.

This is a beautiful place with lost of history, restaurants and bed and breakfast inns. If you are looking for a neat place to get away from it all, this could be a great vacation spot. We didn't have time to look for a place to shoot skeet, but we did try some pretty good restaurants.

Pictured on the right is the back porch and patio of Luther's Rare & Well Done Restaurant which is located at 910 Bay Street, in Beaufort. We entered through the street entrance, walked out the back door and sat on the patio to enjoy the October weather and the view of the river.

Open daily for lunch and dinner, this American Grille specializes in Black Angus beef and seafood. The menu includes wraps, sandwiches, burgers, salads and a number of seafood options.

Luther's back porch and patio (above) has a great view of the river (below).

Debbie and I shared an order of Lowcountry Crab cakes with baked potato and sautéed vegetables.. Debbie also had a house salad. The crab cakes were very good, but I can't say they were better than some I have eaten in Louisiana. One of the visitors in our party had the pan seared grouper filets and was very pleased with his choice.

The food was pretty good and the view was excellent. The pleasant fall weather certainly enhanced the experience.

On our second night in Beaufort, we dined at the 11th Street Dockside restaurant on the neighboring island of Port Royal. Located at 1699 11 St. West, Port Royal this eatery is open daily for dinner from 4:40 PM to 10 PM.

The restaurant is located on the banks of Battery Creek, which provides fabulous views and stunning sunsets. The photos on the left [center and bottom] were taken as we were leaving having dined sumptuously.

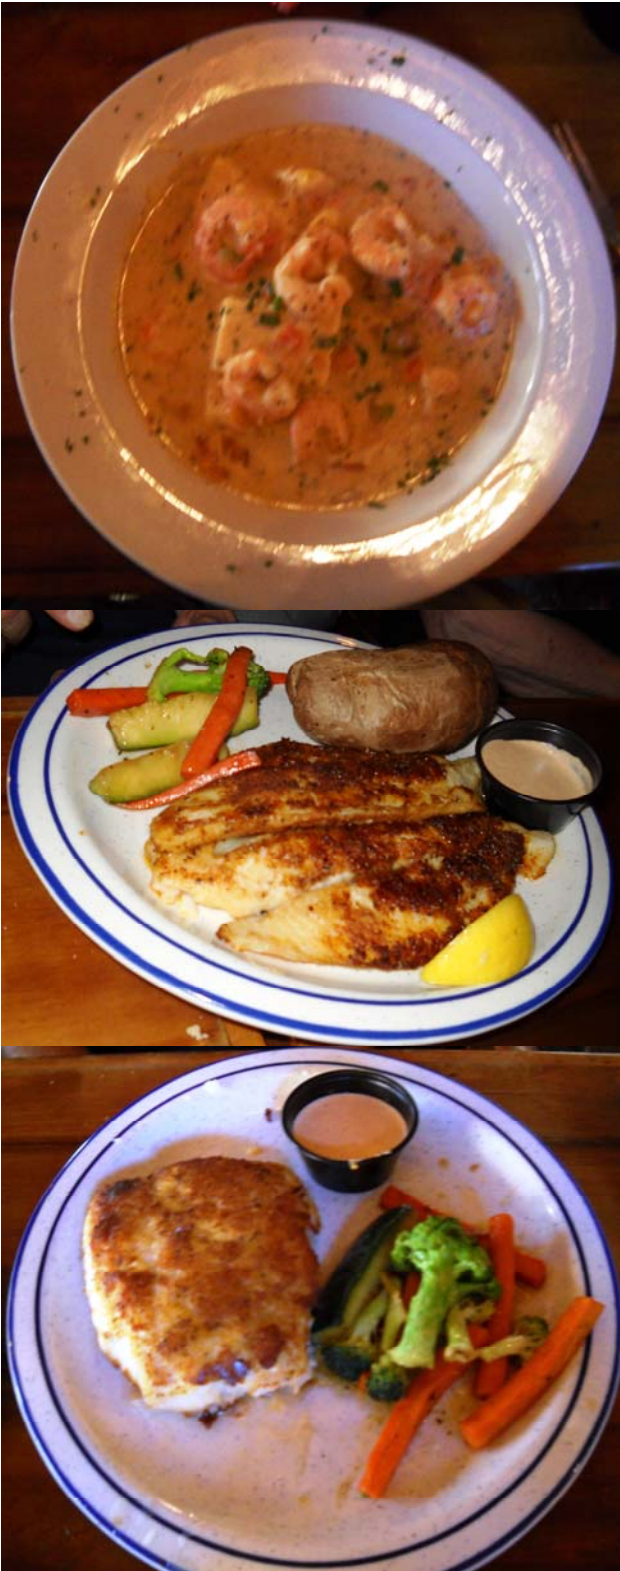

We were given the heads-up about this establishment by a local who said it was a popular place to go for casual waterfront dining at reasonable prices.

We arrived early, which turned out to be a wise move. By the time we left, the parking lot was full and the restaurant was hopping.

The Lowcountry Hush Puppies at the 11th Street Dockside Restaurant are excellent. They have their own original recipe and they serve them with honey butter.

Corn bread is served with the meals and was also quite tasty. The corn bread was very sweet and could have served as dessert.

This region is famous for Lowcountry dishes like Shrimp and Grits [see photo left]. I had to try those and I was glad I did.

Debbie had fried oysters which were also good. Brother-In-Law Bob had the grilled fish dish on the left [center] and Debbie's Sister Denise enjoyed the Potato Crusted Grouper [bottom left] which she said was very good.

The menu is full of seafood choices that looked quite inviting. If we ever have a reason to come this way again, I will definitely want to visit this eatery again. If you are in the neighborhood, check it out!

The Wall of Honor

In our May issue, we announced our plans to add a page to the www.RedChuteGazette.com website to honor those men and women who are serving our nation in the Armed Forces. I have been thinking it would be nice to have a page on which we could post pictures of the men and women to honor them and to invite others who visit that page to pray for their safety and success as they strive to protect us and bring freedom to others.

The Wall of Honor is now up on our website.

If you have sons, daughters, nieces, nephews, cousins, parents, friends or neighbors that are serving our country in the Armed Forces, please send us a digital photo of them, their names, rank, branch of service and your name as sponsor and we will post that information on the website.

So far we have received only a few pictures. If you want to participate in this effort., please send a digital photo of and information about your serviceman or woman to publisher@redchutegazette.com.

Most Sincerely,

Doug Frey

The Red Chute Gazette Deal

Mission Statement

The goal of the Red Chute Gazette is to promote the game of American Skeet. Our target market includes Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Oklahoma, and Texas. These states comprise Zone VI within the National Skeet Shooting Association.

Our goal is accomplished through publication and distribution an Internet only magazine containing items of interest to those individuals participating in, promoting and supporting registered skeet shoots. Subject matter includes calendars of upcoming events, shoot flyers, shoot reports and pictures. Also included are articles and stories about bird hunting, travel and food.

The Deal

The Red Chute Gazette will include flyers advertising registered skeet shoots for your gun club at no cost to your club. Simply send us your flyer in Microsoft Word or PDF format via E-Mail. That's FREE!

The Catch

If we agree to publish your shoot flyers, you agree to provide us with a shoot report suitable for printing in the Red Chute Gazette. Include pictures (jpeg or gif files) if possible.

What about Sporting Clays and Trap or other events?

The mission of the Red Chute Gazette is to promote interest and participation in registered skeet. Sporting Clays and Trap are not subjects we focus on. We recognize that many gun clubs offer events other than skeet. We are happy to provide commercial advertising space for clubs that wish to promote other shooting related events.

We are happy to offer a special package deal to clubs that support our magazine. If your club buys an ad in the Red Chute Gazette for a full year (1/4 page or larger), we will not only include your ad in 12 issues, we will include any shoot flyers (please limit flyers to two pages) for sporting clays, trap or other events your club promotes in those issues at no additional charge.
